Look at our neighbors, compared to that there is somebody in India who's doing something right for us to be called a growing economy

1

It is projected as the third largest economy in 2026 and the most educated and young nation in the world.

We are also very capable of finding very unique solutions to the problems that generally the world faces

2

We found freedom through non-violence and non-cooperation. One man in a loincloth would believe in faith and complete conviction was able to do that for us — you know, Mahatma Gandhi

Conclusion in the video:

Summary

So I dream of a 2030 where rural India is as developed as the rest of the world, is as aspirational as the rest of India and where the villager is provided with the same opportunities as it is available in the cities. And after a hard day's work, a villager is actually able to come back, sit down, have a drink, put his feet up and start thinking about art and culture and poetry.
